ILEAD WRAP-UP

In a weekend where movements of change began, resilience was created, and dreams were turned into goals – the iLead Retreat legacy began. On February 27, 2015, the CCLC took around 100 students and 15 staff to Shady Creek, where they were involved in leadership challenges, exploration of passions, self-understanding, story articulation and creating tangible changes toward the world we want to see.

Going through the leadership challenge, students soon began identifying, reflecting and acting on effective leadership in a group. Movements began circling, students started thinking and change was occurring. Through three workshops, participants could choose two; all helping with forming a leader who is effective. Keynote speaker Dr. Derek Greenfield led groups through Grassroots change, which focused on where to start and sustain a movement. Bob Sprague, faculty of Chico State, was able to take students on a journey of self-exploration related to leadership, focusing on what needs to happen to move on in your life and where you begin to lead yourself. The last workshop to choose from was held by Krystle Tonga, CCLC Assistant programmer, equipped students with the ability to lead amongst a culture of apathy, this helping them understand how to meet people where they are at.

Opening up the groups mind on a bigger scale of changing the world, Derek Greenfield was able to have students face their fears and what is stopping them from becoming this change in the world. Ending the weekend, Sunday, March 1, 2015 these participants were ready and began their plan toward changing one issue in today’s world. –Morgan Grey “Change happened, and a group of people came together at the end finding in themselves that they could change the world together.”

AAWESOME, it stands for Asian (American) Women Experiences Support on Meaningful Empowerment. The purpose of AAWESOME is to create a support system for Asian Women outside of the home where often support isn’t always present. We want to create opportunities for Asian Women to have a voice on campus through sharing stories, experiences, educating, and empowering. We strive to break stereotypes of Asian Women and to show real women and the struggles of familial obligations and expectations. More than anything, we want to create new connections between women and to help them gain confidence in themselves and step up as new leaders on campus, whatever that looks like and means to them. -Maisue Thao
JOIN THE CCLC FAMILY TREE

The CCLC is more than just a space where people come to hang out or a place for students to work to put on programs. It is a place of POSSIBILITIES. Imagine the possibilities when there is nothing standing in your way.

What can you do? What impact do you want to have? What is going to be your legacy when you leave Chico? The CCLC is here to help you develop your leadership skills and give you the opportunity to think of the impossible and make them possible.

This month we are searching for the next generation of our CCLC Family. If you’re interested in diversity and making lasting, positive impact on our campus please join us!
