Misperceptions and bias about mental illness may make it difficult for others to know how to “level the playing field” for students with depression, anxiety, bipolar disorder, or other mental health issues. How do we breakdown some of the myths about mental illness, and help all students by boosting awareness and acceptance of people with mental health issues? Let’s talk about it!

Bring your lunch and join us!