

DOCUMENTARY FILM

ORIGINAL PATRIOTS: NORTHERN CALIFORNIA INDIAN VETERANS OF WWII

DATE / TIME : NOVEMBER 18 @ 6 P M
LOCATION : HOLT 170
ADMISSION : FREE

When America joined the Allies in World War II in 1941, over 25,000 Native American people joined the war effort. Although their stories are rarely told, they are part of "The Greatest Generation." This KEET-TV production, in partnership with Native American educator and author of the book The Original Patriots: Northern California Indian Veterans of World War Two, Chag Lowry (Yurok/Maidu/Pit River), shares the stories of three Northern California Native American Veterans of World War Two. Lee Hover (Karuk Tribe), Frank Richards (Tolowa/Smith River Rancheria), and Wally Scott (Yurok Tribe) recount their experiences at Guadalcanal, Iwo Jima and D-Day, and share their views on the costs of war.

Producer Chag Lowry (York/Maidu/Pit River) will be in attendance to answer any questions about the film.

Sponsored by the Office of Diversity