Once considered a predominantly K-12 problem, online harassment is becoming a problem for more and more college students. College and university leaders are working to understand the issues and determine the best ways to educate and address cyber-bullying issues.

This webinar will cover what each college must do, what it may choose to do, and what all colleges should do to address cyber bullying.