Comparative Educational Practices: Supporting Equity and Diversity

Diana Parks, CSU Chico's Office of International Training, and a panel of visiting teachers from around the world

Schools are the primary arena within which efforts to nurture equity and diversity have been focused and challenged. During this presentation, secondary educators from across the world will critically examine and compare how the conceptual categories of race, class, language, gender, ability and sexual orientation (among others) intersect to create vastly uneven schooling experiences and opportunities for students.

The Public is Welcome
