What Palm trees can teach us about ADHD
Linda Johnson
Our brains wiring is as diverse as trees in a forest. Every one of the noble Oak tress we pass on the way to Butte College has a unique set of branches. Those branches are like neural paths in our brain, and no set of branches is alike. But of course Palm and Dogwood trees are not “disordered” and now, we realize quite humbly, nor are unique brain wiring patterns like “Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder”. We are now learning that the “ADHD” brain wiring pattern may well be what enabled our species to survive. Come learn how at this fast-paced tour through the brave new world of Neuro-diversity.

Rethinking Race and Gender Blindness
Dr. Sherrow Pinder
It has often been argued that Americans should be blind to identity categories such as race and gender. And, given the history of racism, sexism, and other forms of systemic discriminatory practice in the United States, I would like to ask if this willful form of blindness is, to a large extent, related to a specific political agenda. The terms of this political agenda are what I will explore in this presentation.

Celebrating TRANSgender* Lives
Thomas Kelem, Stonewall Alliance Chico
This event will provide a brief overview of words to use, how to be an ally, and a panel discussion. This is the intersection of Trans*Week Chico 2015 and Diversity Days. Trans*Week is focused around International Transgender Day of Visibility which celebrates trans* people around the globe, brings attention to their accomplishments, and raises trans* awareness and inclusivity.

Butte College Student Success Scorecard Outcomes
Les Jauron
Presentation uses the Student Success Scorecard to describe the levels of preparation, success, and achievement by students from various ethnicities, levels of preparation, and from the different high schools in the District. Specific indicators include degree and certificate achievement, developmental completion, and career and technical education completion. Understanding these data provides a good start point for determining interventions that would help students be more successful.

Healthy Sexuality: Consent is the New Black
Butte Feminist Club
In 2014, Governor Jerry Brown signed into law the "Yes Means Yes" consent law, making California the first state in the nation to have a clear definition of when people agree to sex. Come join a panel discussion with faculty and students about why consent and the new consent law are so important and how we are turning "rape culture" into "consent culture."
