Strategies To Improve Retention Rates Of First-Year African American Males (Webinar)

April 26
Noon - 1pm
Colusa Hall 100B

Facilitated by:
P. Brandon Johnson, Ph.d
Assistant Director for Tutoring Services at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro

Jason A. Moore
Director of Educational Talent Search at Rutgers University-Newark.

In this webinar, the presenters will discuss strategies that institutions of higher education can use to address the social and academic needs of first-year African American male students. It also presents data from a study of an African American male retention program on the campus of a Historically Black College and University.
