Sunday March 30
Day of Celebration
Women’s Club  11:30 to 3:30
This is an opportunity to come together, honor, and celebrate ourselves for who we are.
The event will include: An open mike session, and a question and answer session, in a safe, supportive space.
The open mike session will be an opportunity to safely share; a word, a picture, a paragraph, a poem, or whatever speaks for you; a small part of your world, to make all of our worlds larger.
The question and answer session will be an opportunity to learn from each other, to share our knowledge with each other in a comfortable supportive setting.
Local speakers to include: Aden Harr, Kory Masen, Suzanne Rindlisbacher
Food table, share a good meal with friends

More Information about the Presenters:

Aydin Kennedy, MSW, ACSW, is the Transgender Health Program Coordinator at St John’s Well Child & Family Center in Los Angeles; a comprehensive medical and mental health program serving trans* adults throughout the Southern California region. He has been working with the queer and trans* community since 1998, providing competency trainings for service providers for over 10 years and for the last 5 years mentoring and counseling trans* youth, adults and their families. He is also a co-founder of the Stonewall Alliance Center’s community counseling program in Chico, CA.

Johanna Olson, MD, is the medical director of the Center for Transyouth Health and Development at Children’s Hospital Los Angeles. She has been working with gender-nonconforming children and transgender adolescents for the past six years, providing them with puberty blockers and hormone therapy. Board certified in pediatrics and adolescent medicine, Dr. Olson has been an assistant professor at Children’s Hospital Los Angeles for the past five years. She speaks around the country and has appeared on national television to educate audiences about the needs of transgender youth.

Asaf Orr, Esq, is a Staff Attorney at National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR) since February 2012 where he works on issues related to families and youth. Prior to joining NCLR, Asaf was a solo practitioner in Los Angeles where he represented students in education-related matters including special education, discrimination, constitutional rights and discipline.
Asaf began his legal career as a Staff Attorney and Tom Steel Fellow at a non-profit legal services organization, where he directed the Rainbow Rights Project, a project that represents youth in education-related matters who are denied their right to an education on the basis of their sexual orientation or gender identity. In addition to his work on the Rainbow Rights Project, Asaf also represented students with disabilities in special education matters before the Office of Administrative Hearings and federal court.
In addition to representing parents of children, Asaf also provided trainings to students, parents, educators, health care providers, and lawyers on special education issues and the rights of LGBTQ youth in schools. He has provided those trainings in California and around the country.

David Nylund, PhD, LCSW, has over 25 years of clinical experience working in many contexts including community mental health, non-profit agencies, managed care settings, and private practice. Dr. Nylund is on the faculty of the Vancouver School for Narrative Therapy, a professor of Social Work at California State University, Sacramento, and the clinical director of the Gender Health Center. He conducts workshops for mental health professionals nationwide and internationally. He writes and speaks on the use of queer theory with sexual and gender minorities. He is an expert on transgender mental health care and is a full-standing member of the World Professional Association for Transgender Health (WPATH).
