Pathways to Persistence:
Student Success Takes a Campus

Wednesday, October 25
9:00–10:30am
Colusa Hall 100B

This workshop offers participants a learning and development experience they can participate in rather than just read or hear about, and they leave the simulation with a clear sense that what they do matters, along with concrete tangible strategies that they can utilize to contribute to a campus community that promotes student satisfaction, development, and persistence.

Reframing At-Risk to High Potential:
Responding to Today’s Diverse Students

Wednesday, October 25
3:00–4:30pm
Selvester’s Café by the Creek

This presentation and discussion will identify the characteristics, challenges, and effective strategies for increasing engagement, learning, and persistence for students who often are at-risk for leaving college and/or for not achieving their full potential. It will highlight theories of student learning and motivation and provide concrete individual and programmatic interventions that have worked to increase achievement and persistence for students-at-risk.
