

Judy L. Sitton:

Judy L. Sitton is the President of the Northern California Natural History Museum's Board of Directors. She received a bachelor's degree and a Lifetime Teaching Credential from California State University, Chico. Sitton went on to do graduate work in counseling at the University of Alberta. Upon her return to Chico, Sitton taught at a number of elementary schools in Chico before becoming the Executive Vice President of SunGard Bi-Tech software company. Sitton retired in 2000, and in 2003 she received an honorary Ph.D. from CSU, Chico and the CSU system. Sitton received the Distinguished Alumni Award for Service in 2006. She is the former chair of the CSU, Chico's President's Advisory Board. Sitton is currently the vice chair of Enloe Medical Center's Board of Trustees, and is a member of the Advisory Board for the College of Natural Sciences. She is also the recipient of a number of service awards, both locally and nationally.

Sitton is passionate about the beauty, legacy, history and quality of life in the North State. She is confident that the Northern California Natural History Museum will support the educational mission and provide a lifelong learning environment for all. Sitton is looking forward to watching children and adults alike learn about science, exploration and discovery of the North State's natural history in a dynamic and interactive way.
