

Guide to APA Style Basics

Meriam Library - California State University, Chico

For more information consult the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 6th edition (Call Number: ref BF 76.7 P83 2010) or visit <http://libguides.csuchico.edu/citingsources-APA>

Formatting the Reference List

1. Reference list starts on a new page. Type the word "References" centered at the top of the page.
2. Double-space all reference list entries.
3. Use hanging indent form. The first line of each reference is set flush left and subsequent lines are indented 1/2 inch.
4. Arrange alphabetically, not by format of publication: book, journal, etc.
5. The author should be the first element, even for web pages. If no author is present, use editor name. If no editor is present, start with book title or article title.
6. List author's last name, followed by a comma then initials for first and middle name. Do not spell out author's first or middle name.
7. Use "&" instead of "and" when listing multiple authors of a single work.
8. For a journal article with more than seven authors, list the first seven authors and three periods, and then list the last author.
9. The date is always the second element and is contained in parentheses.
10. Book and periodical titles should be in italics. Volume numbers of periodicals should be in italics.
11. If a journal has both a volume and an issue number, write the volume number followed by the issue number in parenthesis. There is no space between the volume number and the open parenthesis.
12. Article titles are plain text. No quotes or italics.
13. Capitalize only the first word of the title and the subtitle for books, book chapters, and article titles.
14. Capitalize the first letter of each word in a periodical title except articles (a, an, the).
15. Each element (author, date, title, etc.) of a citation is separated by a period and one space.

See Chapter 7 of the Publication Manual for more details on formatting. The online version of this guide also has further examples of different types of citations in the APA style.

Reference Citations in Text

In addition to the list of references at the end of your paper, you need to cite your sources in the text of your paper. The author's last name and the year are always listed. If the article has six or more authors, write only the first author's name, followed by "et al." If there is no known author, list the title in quotation marks and the date. A page or paragraph number is required for verbatim quotations.

See Chapter 6 of the Publication Manual for more details on citing sources in the text.

Examples of Citations in Text

Author's name in text (no page number):

Cassell and Jenkins (2000) compared reaction times...

Author's name in reference (no page number):

In a recent study of reaction times (Cassell and Jenkins, 2000)...

Author's name in text (page number):

According to Cuno (2008), "For years, archaeologists have lobbied for national and international laws, treaties, and conventions to prohibit the international movement of antiquities" (p.1).

Author's name in reference (page number):

At least one scholar argued that, "The term 'Czechoslovak' had become a rich source of contention almost immediately after the state's formation" (Innes, 2001, p.16).

No known author: Use an abbreviated version of the title of the page in quotation marks to substitute for the name of the author. Example:

A similar study was done of students learning to format research papers ("Using APA," 2001).

No known author or date: Use the first few words from the title and the abbreviation n.d. ("no date"). Example:

In another study of students and research decisions, it was discovered that students succeeded with tutoring ("Tutoring and APA," n.d.).
