The Honors Program offers a wealth of special opportunities for motivated, academically successful undergraduate students. These opportunities range from specially designed courses in general education (Honors in General Education Program) and in selected majors (Honors in the Major Program) to the many honors societies that students can join. High achieving students often take advantage of more than one of these special opportunities to enrich their academic experience at Chico. Through these programs, they find that the quality of their education is heightened and that they forge special relationships with other honors students and with faculty. Moreover, the honors they earn make them highly desirable candidates for graduate school and for employment.

HONORS IN GENERAL EDUCATION

For this program, you complete a portion of your general education requirements by enrolling in special honors sections of general education classes. The honors sections are small, innovative, and interactive. They are taught by some of the best professors on campus. The classes offer a stimulating environment for learning, as well as an opportunity to work closely with honors faculty and other honors students. You become part of a vital learning community that comes together in the classroom as well as outside for social and educational events. While in the program, you benefit from priority registration for all of your classes, and successful completion of the program is prominently noted on your diploma and transcripts.

If you enter the Honors Program in General Education as a freshman, you have several options for your first year of honors work. You can participate as an honors student in the Freshman General Studies Thematic. (See "Freshman General Studies Thematic" following these pages or visit http://www.csuchico.edu/gst for more information.) If you plan to become an elementary school teacher, you can participate as an honors student in the Liberal Studies Integrated Teacher CORE. (See the Education or Liberal Studies chapter of the catalog or visit http://www.csuchico.edu/educ/progs_core.html for more information.) Your third option is to enroll in individual honors classes.

Many of our freshmen enroll in individual honors classes (http://www.csuchico.edu/hnrs). Every semester the program offers approximately fifteen different honors classes from a wide range of departments across the university. With one or two exceptions, each class fulfills a general education requirement for graduation. We do offer an occasional section of very popular, non-GE classes as a service to our students. You choose which courses you want to take each semester. This structure gives the program the flexibility to fit well with every major on campus. Lower-division courses are available in most of the required GE areas, and we are adding more all the time. Some of these classes are special honors sections of popular general education courses. Others are special, innovative classes created just for the Honors Program.

Upper-division requirements are met by special team-taught theme courses. You work with each other and professors from two disciplines, allowing you a richer understanding of a world of rapidly changing social and technological demands and opportunities. In the upper-division Honors theme you have the opportunity to complete a supervised research project, to study abroad, and/or to engage in service learning.

If you choose to take individual honors classes, you are required to complete 27 units or nine honors classes in your four years of study at the university. Of course, you can take more than the nine; many of our students do because they like the classes and do well in them. To remain in the program, you need to maintain a GPA of 3.0 or above in your honors courses and a 3.3 or above in your overall GPA.

The courses we offer for individual honors are outlined here. Which ones you choose to take depends on your interests, your major, as well as a number of other factors. Once you are admitted into the program, you will receive detailed information from us, and Honors staff is always available to review your options with you. Please see the appropriate academic program chapters for complete course descriptions.

HONORS IN THE MAJOR

Honors in the Major is a program of independent work in your major. It involves six units of honors coursework completed over two semesters. Your honors work will be recognized at your graduation, on your permanent transcripts, and on your diploma. It is often accompanied by letters of commendation from your mentor in the department or the department chair. Most importantly, however, the Honors in the Major program allows you to work closely with a faculty mentor in your area of interest on an original performance or research project. This year-long collaboration allows you to work in your field at a professional level and culminates in a public presentation of your work. Students sometimes take their projects beyond the university for submission in professional journals, presentation at conferences, or competition in shows. Such experience is valuable for graduate school and professional life.

Some common features of Honors in the Major programs are:

1) You must take six units of Honors in the Major course work. At least three of these units are independent study (299H) as specified by your department. You must complete each class with a minimum grade of B.
2) You must have completed nine units of upper-division course work or 21 overall units in your major before you can be admitted to Honors in the Major. Check the requirements for your major carefully as there may be specific course requirements in addition to the upper-division course work.
3) Your cumulative GPA should be at least 3.5 or within the top 5% of majors in your department. Your GPA in your major should be at least 3.5 or within the top 5% of majors in your department.
4) Most students apply for or are invited to participate in Honors in the Major during the second semester of their junior year. Then they complete the six units of course work over the two semesters of their senior year.
5) Your honors work culminates with a public presentation of your honors project.

While Honors in the Major is part of the Honors Program, each department administers its own program. Please contact your major department or major advisor to apply.
