

Evelyn G. Narad Health Science Scholarship

Department of Public Health & Health Services Administration

Health education & Public Health majors are invited to apply for the Evelyn G. Narad Health Science Scholarship. This endowed scholarship of $300 is awarded every Spring. The goal of the scholarship is to encourage interest in diabetes education as a career.

To qualify for this scholarship, you must:

- Have an interest in diabetes education
- Majoring in Public Health or Health Science with an option in Education
- Be at least a Junior by the Fall semester the application is being completed
- Have a CSU, Chico GPA of 3.0 or above
- Complete the PHHA supplemental application online

The application includes an essay section in which you are asked to describe your interest and experience in diabetes and diabetes education, your career plans, as they relate to diabetes education, and your philosophy regarding diabetes education. Applications are available in the HCSV Department Office (Butte 607).

Evelyn Narad was a graduate of Hunter College and received the master's degree from New York University. In 1973, after a career as a school and community health educator, she moved to California. Soon after, she was diagnosed with diabetes. Because she found little information available to diabetics, she became a diabetes educator and developed educational programs to help people live with the disease.

After serving as president of the Sonoma County Chapter of the American Diabetes Association, she co-founded the Diabetes Society of Sonoma County. She retired after serving many years on the diabetes board but was named director-emerita for her dedication and many contributions to the organization. In 2001, she died of complications from diabetes, a disease that directed her life for 28 years.

Upon her passing, her family and friends decided to fund a scholarship for seniors in Health Science with the Health Education option, who have an interest in diabetes education.
