gratefully wish to acknowledge the contribution of Kathleen Smith and her work, Tomales Bay Sun. This poster for the 21st Annual California Indian Conference, offers our conference a special tie to the history of Marin and is a significant tribute to the homelands of the Miwok People.
Kathleen, as ever, we thank you for your talent and generosity.

Tomales Bay Sun by Kathleen Smith
Yoletamal (Bodega) Miwok, Goat Rock Pomo, and Mihilakawna (Dry Creek Pomo).

In 1906 the late Tomales Miwok elder Juana Bautista, last maian, or female leader, of her people told anthropologist C. Hart Merriam about the theft of Sun Woman. Inspired by this story, Kathleen Smith created a 1994 series of three original linoleum prints depicting the story of Sun Woman, who brought light and heat to a previously dark Tomales Bay.

Sun Woman I in this series, represents the world without the sun. Blue-black stripes emulate the once completely dark Tomales Bay. A white stripe represents the fog, while yellows, pinks, and purples, all colors of Sun Woman's abalone covered body, indicate her distant glimmer to the east.

Sun Woman II in this series describes the kidnap of Sun Woman by men, intent on bringing her back to Tomales Bay, to make light for the people. Vertical white and purple lines represent the ropes in which the men tie her. Four diagonal lines represent women's chin tattoos. Sun Woman III in this series glows with the bright abalone iridescence of the kidnapped Sun Woman, who daily lights the sky over Tomales Bay.

This new piece, Tomales Bay Sun, is a reworking of Sun Woman III.

Welcome to the 21st Annual California Indian Conference hosted by Marin Museum of the American Indian and Dominican University of California. We are proud to host this conference and wish to welcome all participants to the campus and the conference. The following pages list the schedule for this weekend’s events, including program times and room locations. (Please note: The conference schedule is subject to unexpected changes; changes will be posted at the registration area). Also included is a campus map, with directions to locations for conference sessions. If you need assistance, there will be “Student Ambassadors” to assist you. They will be wearing conference T-shirts.

On Friday, you’ll find information and registration tables at the Creekside Center and Meadowlands Hall, where that day’s afternoon session will take place. On Saturday, the information and registration tables will be located at the Creekside Center and Angelico Hall, where the keynote speech and the first sessions will take place. Vendors, lunch and dinner will take place at the Creekside Center and the Caleruega Dining Hall; this area is shown on the map as a star.

There is ample parking, including dedicated slots for disabled parking, around the campus on weekends, but please obey all posted parking signs. All campus parking lots will be unrestricted throughout the weekend. If you need assistance please ask a Student Ambassador for help (look for conference T-shirts). If needed, they can call for transportation or assistance.

Our sessions begin in Meadowlands Hall on Friday at 1 PM. An Opening Blessing and Welcome, as well as afternoon sessions, will take place in Meadowlands until 4:15 PM. Following this, from 4:30 – 6:30 PM all conference participants are invited to attend the Marin Museum of the American Indian exhibition, Spirit Speaks, at the Marin Community Foundation in Novato. The Foundation will host a catered reception during the exhibition. Albert Martinez (Miwok) will play flute music.

Everyone is welcome.

Transportation to the exhibition at Marin Community Foundation will be provided. A shuttle will pick up curbside on Magnolia Avenue at the Creekside Center (see map) beginning at 4:15 PM. The shuttle will also pick up curbside on Acacia Avenue directly in front of Guzman Hall at 4:30 PM. Both shuttles will continue to pick up and drop off at these same locations throughout the evening. The last shuttle will leave Novato at 6:45 PM. (Refer to map for the campus drop off and pick up locales).

If you prefer to drive to the exhibition and reception, a handout map is provided with directions to Marin Community Foundation, please ask at the Information & Registration Desk, prior to the event.

On Sunday afternoon, everyone is invited to Alcatraz Island; Jose Rivera, Park Ranger and Tribal Liaison, will host this tour. This Event is free, but you must RSVP at the Information Desk at registration. The boat ride and Island access are provided; there is a cost for parking at the Pier location. A handout will be provided. Please note: Dress, warm, the island is windy and cold.

Enjoy the weekend
