This conversation will explore how Health and Wellness is defined within the Latinx community, including how “real” distress is perceived and experienced, and cultural expectations for coping. Students will also have a chance to explore variations of what being happy and healthy looks like while living within and outside of the Latinx community, and how one might navigate their personal path to Wellness as informed by their cultural and individual values.