PRENATAL RADIATION EXPOSURE RISKS AND PRECAUTIONS

I have received information regarding the risks of prenatal radiation exposure to the developing embryo/fetus, the limits for such exposure and the California State University, Chico policy and options available to me to maintain such exposures as low as reasonably achievable (ALARA).

If I wish to continue working with and/or around radiation sources while I am pregnant, I understand that University's policy encourages me:

- (1) To become a declared pregnant woman by notifying the Radiation Safety Officer, in writing, of my pregnancy and the estimated date of conception.
- (2) To consult with EH&S as early as possible to discuss any particular concerns which I may have regarding this issue.
