

THE DEPARTMENT OF COMPARATIVE RELIGION AND HUMANITIES

OUR MISSION:

The Department of Comparative Religion and Humanities is devoted to the scholarly interpretation of religion and the appreciation and analysis of cultural traditions. The department empowers graduates to become literate guides for contemporary society in its quest to comprehend the histories, beliefs, and customs of diverse peoples and traditions.

"If I went back to college today, I think I would probably major in comparative religion, because that's how integrated it is in everything that we are working on an deciding and thinking about in life today."

John Kerry, U.S. Secretary of State

"The arts and humanities define who we are as a people. That is their power -- to remind us of what we each have to offer, and what we all have in common. To help us understand our history and imagine our future. To give us hope in the moments of struggle and to bring us together when nothing else will."

Michelle Obama
