Electronic Device Disposal Procedures
Procedures for Departments without technical support staff

Environmental waste and data security have become ever increasing areas of focus for the campus community. Disposal of electronics and media that contain any type of personal or institutional data touches directly on these two areas of concern. With the cost of EPA fines and of confidential data breaches being significant both from a monetary and reputation standpoint, the University has established strict guidelines for disposal of computers, data, and media.

The following procedures have been designed to fulfill EPA requirements, and protect our most sensitive assets: confidential data. Our University has already experienced two significant confidential data breaches, which cost individual departments in the estimated hundreds of thousands of dollars. We do not want your area to be a victim, and have developed a program to assist in the proper disposal of electronic devices and media.

This document is intended to assist those areas that do not have their own technical staff with proper disposal of electronic devices (computers, monitors, printers, PDA’s, cell phones, etc.) and devices that have personal or institutional data (cd’s, floppies, zip disks, flash drives, etc.). If your area has technical support, please contact your technician to arrange for proper disposal.

Electronic “devices” include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Computers
- Monitors
- Laser and inkjet Printers
- Keyboards, mice, trackballs
- PDA’s (Palm Pilots, PocketPC devices)
- Cell Phones
- USB Flash Drives and other memory card devices
- Floppies, CDs, Zip Disks with Personal or Department information
- Any other electronic devices that might contain hazardous components or data

Please refer to the following chart to determine proper disposal procedures.

Note – Equipment with state decals must have a Property Transfer form filled out and attached.
